York College of Pennsylvania

Introduction

In this Bicentennial year of 1976, actions, thoughts, and ideas have been centered around the two-hundredth birthday of our great country. Here at York College of Pennsylvania, the students, faculty, and administration are witnessing another type of anniversary within our own institution. After eighteen years of dedicated service to the school and the surrounding community, Dr. Ray A. Miller has announced his retirement as president of York College of Pennsylvania. The staff of this yearbook has seen the accomplishments of this great man, recorded his achievements and attempted to relate them to you without ignoring the accomplishments of our own student body. We hope that our presentation of this momentous year helps Dr. Miller and the students to better remember the events that took place . . . past and present.

Dr. Miller Reminisces
on past 18 years as President of York College

In Retrospect

As president of York College, I have received a large measure of pleasure and satisfaction for a number of reasons. Foremost in my memory are the many fine people I have worked with, students, faculty, staff, administration, and friends in the community.

Since a prime ingredient of the College establishment is students, it is to be expected that they would prompt me to recall many activities associated with them. I remember the Junior College students when we were on Duke Street as well as those who helped to start the Country Club Road campus. They represented all walks of life with the hopes, aspirations, frustrations, and shortcomings that are typical of any college population. They were eager to help, certainly not always pulling together, but what segment of society does always pull together? I remember when we transferred the approximately 11,000 volume library from Duke Street to the library on the second floor of York Hall. The students pitched in with jeeps, small trucks and automobiles and, in one six-hour day, the job was completed; not in a way that the library staff would have preferred but with appreciation for the students' help, without pay, in accomplishing a major task without a great loss of time and library services to the students.

I remember students' attitudes during the troubled 60's. Some were wrong in their expectations of the College, but huge numbers were correct. They were willing to sit down and talk over their problems. The administration and the Board were willing to listen and all of us gained through these useful exchanges.

The seriousness of our evening session students is a part of my pleasant memories. They are the individuals who, in addition to full-time jobs, were motivated to improve themselves academically and culturally, thus preparing themselves for greater challenges.

The athletic teams are special in my memories because I, too, enjoyed playing sports in high school, college and young adult life. Over the years, these men and women make a tremendous contribution to the College, asking for little, yet giving so much. In nearly every instance their conduct brought respect to their College.

The many students and community members who participated in musical and dramatic productions are also close personal friends with whom I have shared many pleasant experiences. The College Choir always seemed to have numbers prepared and were ready to sing at a moments notice. What a great group of ambassadors! We were so fortunate to have their interest and dedication.

From the beginning, I wanted to involve the community in as many of our activities as we possibly could. There is great strength in any college that has a happy town-and-gown relationship. York College seems to have this in abundance. The warm responses of the community to our requests for capital funds, for annual giving and for their willingness to help the College in any reasonable way are major reasons for the progress the College has made over the years.

I am proud of the strides made in the development of our Library and other educational resources that support our academic programs and services. This is what a college or university is all about and my memories are warm and pleasant of these achievements. As I look at the campus complex, with eleven buildings that have been constructed in the past eighteen years, and knowing that these are used by growing numbers of students and community organizations, I have a deep feeling of pride.

If our colleges and universities are to be successful, they must be aware of changes in the needs of society, generally, and respond to them with meaningful programs and services. The Academic Community is not known for responding quickly to innovation and change, but it is a credit to the York College faculty that many new programs were instituted which provide educational opportunities for those seeking professional study, for placement in worthwhile careers, as well as concern for the aged and disadvantaged. I wish I could recall that every decision was reached on a harmonious note. That is not the way it happened. The thing I remember is that decisions were reached and the College is stronger because of them.

The competent and dedicated staff members, custodial, maintenance, secretarial, clerical, and administrative, have been splendid co-workers in building the College. I remember their support and their interest, and am gratified to have been able to know them and to work with them.

To summarize in a few words, the past eighteen years have meant opportunity, service, satisfaction and, above all, pleasure in having met and worked with so many fine people.

Ray A. Miller
President
February, 1976

The Year

The York College Campus reflected the events of each month with its own changes. As summer faded to fall, so the excitement of the first weeks mellowed to a steady routine. Fall ran its course slowly with the warm weather extending into October and November. The brilliantly colored leaves fell to the ground and were blown about by gusts of wind. Windy days turned colder and eventually flurries of snow covered the valleys and hills surrounding the York campus. Mild weather along with rainy days melted the snowy blanket covering the grounds. Sunny days brought about new life on the campus grounds with such sights as robins, budding flowers, and trees. As the seasons changed so did the moods and activities of the students on campus.

September

Life begins at York College in September with a resurgence of campus activities. The Bicentennial events on the York College Campus began in September, 1975, with a flag raising ceremony that was held in front of the library. (above) Although certain events were of great importance, it was a year for the students. The semester started with the usual bustle of moving into the dorms, registering and visiting the college book store. (left) Two new forms of excitement for the students this fall consisted of "innertubing" down Tyler Run (opp. below) and visiting the new establishment, Murph's Study Hall. (opp. above)

Eloise Visits York College Campus

On Wednesday, September 24, Hurricane Eloise took the York College Campus by surprise, and by early Friday morning, the heavy rains caused the waters of Tyler Run to overflow its banks. By 6:45 A.M. Friday, the rising waters forced the residents of the first floor of Springettsbury Hall to evacuate. Continued rains changed Tyler Run into what appeared to be a newly formed river, and prevented female dormitory students from reaching classes. Fortunately the rains subsided by 4:30 Friday afternoon and clean-up operations began. Due to the efforts of volunteers and hired help, the area around Tyler Run soon returned to normal.

Autumn at YCP

October

By the student's second month at York College, the routine of day to day living, attending classes and participating in social activities had been well established. In the middle of October, a weekend was dedicated to the parents of the students of York College of Pennsylvania. The weekend started on Friday night the 16th with a concert entitled "Two Generations of Brubeck." Dave Brubeck enthralled the audience with his renditions of "rag time and modern jazz." On Saturday the students had more time to spend with their parents attending luncheons, visiting professors or watching York College sporting events such as women's field hockey and men's soccer. (left) All in all, Parent's Weekend was the most memorable in October, or for that matter, in the entire school year.

November

The month of November was a month that flourished with student activities and organizational events on the Y.C.P. campus. Some of the students were kept busy during the month by participating in such intramural sports as football and volleyball. (below) The York College Wrestling Team continued the sporting spirit by holding the First Annual York College Spartan Open Wrestling Tournament. The "Concert Lecture Series" started another successful season with such appearances by Jimmy Breslin, and the Dixie Hummingbirds. (right) The Masked Media Players presented their fall production of "Love Rides the Rails — Or Will the Mail Train Run Tonight?" (opp. below) The Students, Faculty, and Administration all seemed to enjoy the activities and events during the month of November.

"A Colonial Christmas"

December

December was a month that saw York College match the activities of the season that this month brings. The month started with the Winter Formal which was held at the Country Club (opp. page) and ended with the Winter Commencement with speaker Kenneth Scalet. (left) December was also a month when students were again asked to prove what they had learned in the preceding weeks. When the studying was done, (below left) and the finals taken, all that was left to do was to pack up and head home for the holidays. (lower right)

January

To the students, January means another semester of college life. For the dormitory inhabitants, it means moving back into the dorms in preparation for another five months of work. For resident students and commuters alike, registration must again take place in order to ensure such things as classroom assignments. January also started off the bicentennial year with patriotic performances from such groups as the Annapolis Brass Quartet. The second month of winter also brought the snow which kept the students busy borrowing the cafeteria's trays in order to spend some time on the slopes of resivor hill.

Let it snow,
Let it snow,
Let it snow!

February

February saw more visitors to the college campus than this month has days. It all started off with a Concert-Lecture program by Jimmy Breslin, (right above) whose lecture was entitled, "Epic Tavern Talk." Novelist Richard Price (above) also toured the campus trying to promote his new book. Rory Gallagher (right) gave a concert in the Wolf Gym to some 500 students and guests. The League of Women Voters (opp. above) set up a voter registration booth in the library, so that those who wanted to, could register before the Pennsylvania Primary. The American Red Cross was also invited to the School by the TKE fraternity, so that much needed blood could be collected. (opp. middle-below)

March

Shortly after the mid-winter break, March entered the scene in all of her glory! Students started off the month in a flurry of activities, some in preparation for the Spring Concert, and some in preparation for the Masked Media's Spring Production — Cat on a Hot Tin Roof. (right) A surprise came to the campus when Dean Douglas (below) announced his retirement as Dean of the College. One of the most important events during this month, was Omega Theta Chi's Volleyball Marathon. The marathon, which lasted 50 hours, raised over $1,000 for the American Cancer Society. Good work men!!!

March Leaves Like a Lamb!

April

Fool's Day started this month of April that soon proved to be a very active month at that. All of the sports teams saw the most action during this month and there was also much for the students to see and do. These things included a bicentennial panel discussion, the annual Folklore Festival, and a concert that was given by Bonnie Raitt. (right) April also saw the start of construction of the new tennis courts and a new field hockey field. (below). The month ended by honoring the students at York College's annual Recognition Dinner. May

This is one month that the students really look forward to. May means the end of weeks of academic work, the start of many spring-time activities, and the beginning of the summer vacation. Spring Weekend started May off with its festive atmosphere filling the campus. (above) Later that same weekend the students were entertained with a brilliant karate demonstration. (left) The Spring Formal was held at the Yorktown with Cindy Levandowski (opp. above) receiving the top honors as Formal Queen for the year 1976. May also meant hours of endless studying in preparation for the semester's finals. To break the hours of the studying routine, movies such as "Dirty Harry" were shown to the students. May! — the end of school, the beginning of summer.

Faculty and Administration

An Administration Building is a vital part of the smooth operation of any college or university. Here at YCP, the Administration Building is a place where students can go for the scheduling of classes, to apply for financial assistance, to pay for this year's tuition, or to take care of any other college related matters. Our Administration Building, which lies on the southern boundary of the college, is one of the newest buildings, second to the Life Science Building of 1974. The structure which was completed in 1968 houses the President's office, the Deans' offices, the Business and Admissions Department, and the Computer Center.

Eulogy for Dr. Gordon W. Bailey

Delivered before the Faculty Senate of York College of Pennsylvania September 8, 1975

We need not eulogize the character of the departed to you who have known him — his life tells its own beautiful story.

Gordon Bailey was a three dimensional man. He was reared in the farmlands of the Midwest. He loved the land. He truly enjoyed the out-of-doors. He was a hiker with a fondness for the Appalachian Trail. Early in life he joined the Navy where he spent twenty-seven years. He served his country in World War II, in the Korean Conflict, and in Vietnam. He loved the sea and at the end of the spring term he went sailing off the coast of Maine. While in the service he added another dimension to his life by learning to fly. He loved to fly and early this summer he went flying with another faculty member.

Gordon Bailey was a true Renaissance man. He was a craftsman having taught himself the skills of a carpenter, electrician, plumber, and stone mason. Anyone visiting his home was soon aware of these skills as you viewed his stone rose garden on the outside and the extensive remodeling on the inside. Other facets of this talented man ranged from an interest in music to a passion for sports.

Gordon Bailey was a true Christian. He loved his family, He was a proud father and a devoted husband. He loved his church and worked hard in its behalf. He and his wife wrote and produced their church's newspaper. Added to these attributes was his love for his fellowman. Gordon was kind, gentle, patient, understanding and forgiving.

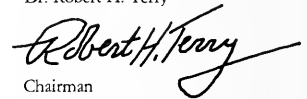

Gordon Bailey was a scholar with a devotion to history. He was an avid reader, he wrote, he edited, and he published. In fact, just prior to his final hospitalization he was researching the history of an outbreak of botulism in North Dakota in the 1930s. He loved teaching and he loved his students.

Will Durant sums up much of what has to have been a part of Gordon Bailey's philosophy of life when he wrote, "To those of us who study history not merely as a warning reminder of man's follies and crimes, but also as an encouraging remembrance of generative souls, the past ceases to be a depressing chamber of horrors; it becomes a celestial city, a spacious country of the mind, wherein a thousand saints, statesmen, inventors, scientists, poets, artists, musicians, lovers, and philosophers still live and speak, teach and carve and sing."

Gordon Bailey lived and died for the good of his country and his fellowman. He epitomizes the words of the Apostle Paul when he said, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

York College is a better place today because Gordon Bailey came this way. May he rest in peace.

IN MEMORIAM

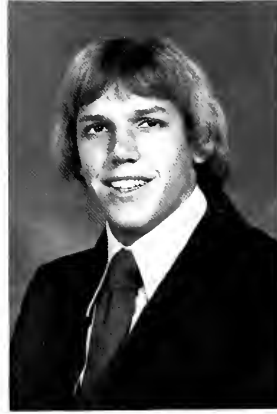

Students

It has been stated that a school is measured by the quantity and quality of its library. York College's first permanent library was completed in July 1964, at the cost of $533,000. To many of the students in this section, the library played an important part in the attainment of their individual degrees. The new structure offered the students over 100,000 volumes, an art gallery, and reading space for about 400 persons. Then in 1972 plans were drawn up for a new periodicals room and a new audio-visual department in the lower level of the library. It was fully completed in 1975.

Organizations and Activities

A Student Center is a place that students can go to get a bite to eat or to relieve the pressures of studying. It is also a place where student-run organizations such as the yearbook, newspaper, and the radio station are located. The Student Center on the YCP campus was completed in August of 1965 at a cost of $665,000. The Student Center is a much needed structure for any college, for the many things it can offer to the students.

ΛΣΧ

Since 1941, Lambda Sigma Chi has provided school and community service, encouraged shared interests, and developed close friendships among the female students on the YCP campus.

Annual activities include hosting for Parents' Weekend, planning the Winter and Spring Formals, sponsoring a fashion show for the benefit of the March of Dimes, collecting for UNICEF, and collecting food during Thanksgiving for needy families.

Special activities for 1975-76 included organizing a Slave Day with proceeds going to the Cancer Fund in honor of the late Dr. Gordon Bailey, coordinating a Halloween Party for the children at York Hospital, selling subs at elkiers grove parties and to hungry dorm students, selling Easter and Christmas candy to students and members of the community.

But most important Lambda Sigma Chi has cultivated deep and lasting friendships among the girls at YCP.

Cheerleaders

While the College supplies the coaches and the teams, it's the cheerleaders who supply the pep to the games. Dressed in their snappy green and white outfits, the girls who lead the cheers with Joyce Hatch, their coach and advisor, command the respect of every York College supporter.

The cheerleaders worked hard this year spending much time at practice, home and away games — letting our competitors know

"WE DON'T MESS AROUND — OUR TEAMS ARE TOUGH!"

The Student Education Association participated in several functions, both state and local; it is also a professional association of teachers and other educators throughout the Commonwealth which is dedicated to the improvement of education.

During the year the organization ran a series of lunch-time meetings, The Brown Bag Seminar. The seminars were invented for the education majors for the discussion of education related matters, such as discipline in schools, the problem child in class, job market, the qualification of teachers.

This year they were recognized by the student PSEA as one of the Three Outstanding Chapters in the state for 1976, at the state convention.

The group, with its advisor Dr. Bryan Glandon, conducted several activities, a Christmas party for the children in York Hospital; a "legs" contest between the faculty, and several other activities.

SPRING WEEKEND!

SPRING WEEKEND! I overheard one student say, "They should have this type of thing every weekend!" The Festival, which was sponsored by the House of Organizations, took place on May 2, 1976 in the York College parking lot next to the flowing Tyler Run. There were a number of events that kept the students and visitors busy during the entire afternoon. These events included such things as an egg toss, a pie eating contest and a sandwich building and eating contest. The music was provided by WYCFM of York College at a cost of 25¢ per song. The proceeds of this organization and many others went to the Gordon Bailey Memorial Fund. The weekend seemed to be enjoyed by all!

The Thrill of Victory . . .

agony
of defeat?

“The Victor” . . .

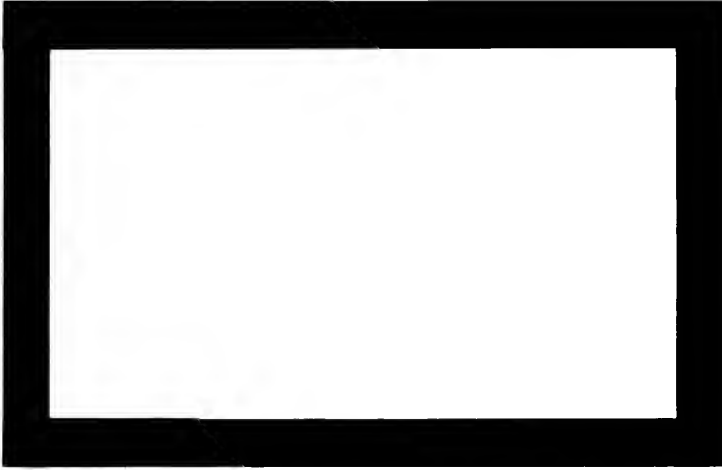

And his spoils of war!

Two of the most important events that took place during Spring Weekend were the Tug-of-War and the “Keg Throw.” The Tug-of-War, which took place across the dammed up Tyler Run, was won easily by the five man entry from the ZOO floor. The team, which weighed in at over 1000 pounds, handily defeated anyone who picked up the rope on the other side. The “Keg Throw”, which was sponsored by Omega Theta Chi, was won by the anchor man of ZOO’s Tug-of-War team. Mark Everline’s shot put style throw was too much for anyone to even come close to. These two events proved one thing . . . “ZOO breeds men, not boys!”

Sports

A Gymnasium at any college or university seems to always be the center of attraction for all the students. Many attend an endless array of events such as basketball games, concerts, and student-run dances. York College's main gym was completed in 1962, but seemed to be too small to accommodate the growing student body. Then in the late 1960's, an addition was added to the back of the gym which provided students such extras as a swimming pool, music room, art gallery, and an additional basketball court.

S. Richard Adkins, a student at York College of Pennsylvania, is one of the Golden Glove Champs of 1976. Rich (dark trunks) won this title in Philadelphia in a unanimous decision over Harry Campbell, lightweight champ of Melville, New Jersey. Rich's boxing adventure started in October of 1975 at the College Ave. Gym. His first few fights were disastrous, resulting in one win and two losses. Soon after, with strong support from Lorenzo Gould and Norman Laws, Rich's following six fights resulted in knock-outs and technical knock-outs which soon led him to the Philadelphia Golden Gloves Victory. So if you turn on your T.V. in 1977 or 1978, don't be alarmed if you find Rich Adkins in the same ring with Muhammed Ali.

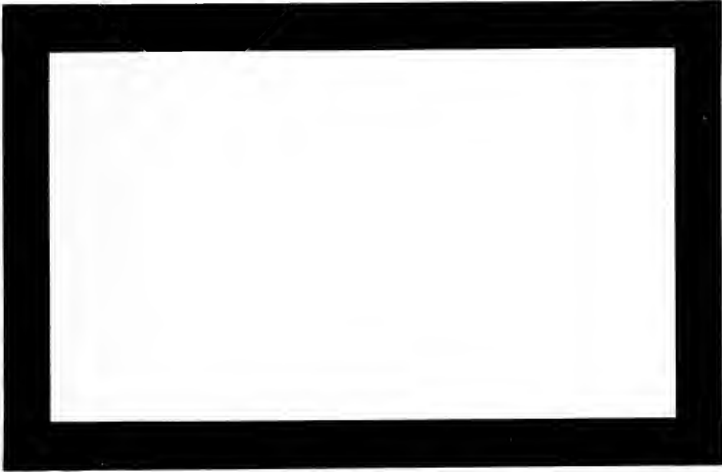

Past . . . Present

Graduation is the highlight of anyone's formal education. For those graduates it means the end of long hours of studying, worrying about finals and trying to get a better grade. It also means the start of added responsibilities, family life and a new job. Graduation always seems to mean the same thing to all persons involved and has yet to change throughout the centuries.

And now, about our friend, Dr. Ray A. Miller.

Ray begins many of his phone conversations with me, "Charlie, can you take a minute to talk two subjects?" We talk the two subjects quickly but thoroughly, then he says, "Charlie, is there anything you want to talk about?"

Between the York College President and the President of the Board of Trustees there are frequent communications. Some are on relatively uncomplicated matters, some are deep and involved. Through my experience of working with Ray Miller over a decade, but working with him as President of the Trustees since October, 1971, I have grown to love and respect both Ray and Cora, his charming wife.

Ray is an activist. He likes to get things done. As we would say in York County, he gets fidgety if a meeting goes too long. He is direct yet can be diplomatic. We all know he is an honest, church going, God fearing, family man. He has put the interests of York College ahead of his personal interests the entire time I've known him. Ray's career at York College spanned many accomplishments, the building of our present campus, the raising of over two million dollars for the Life Sciences Building just occupied in the Fall of 1974.

Along with these tangible evidences of accomplishment his human qualities attract many. He has needed to be an administrator and report to a Board of Trustees who could be characterized as both unified yet diversified. When the Board found itself divided on certain issues Ray Miller stayed optimistic. He had recommendations. He said many times at Board Meetings, "These are my recommendations, however if you decide otherwise, just tell me what to do and I'll see it gets done."

I was delighted the Yearbook Editor invited me to make a few comments about Ray Miller. I say in all sincerity that when Ray leaves York one of my wishes and prayers will be for the happiness of Ray and Cora and his family and friends in their adjustment. From a very personal point of view, I will miss the exciting and rewarding frequent contacts we are still having.

Charles S. Wolf

Miller's Last Major Accomplishment

The Life Science Building was the last permanent structure that was constructed on the campus of York College. Early in the 70's, Dr. Miller noticed the need for a new classroom and laboratory building to accommodate the growing number of the college's students. Soon after, with much help from the Board of Trustees, the fund raising campaign was started for this expensive project. The campaign, which lasted several months, netted the grand total of about 2 million dollars. Construction was then started, and by the fall of 1974 the LSB was completed and ready for use.

The Bicentennial Year's Graduates

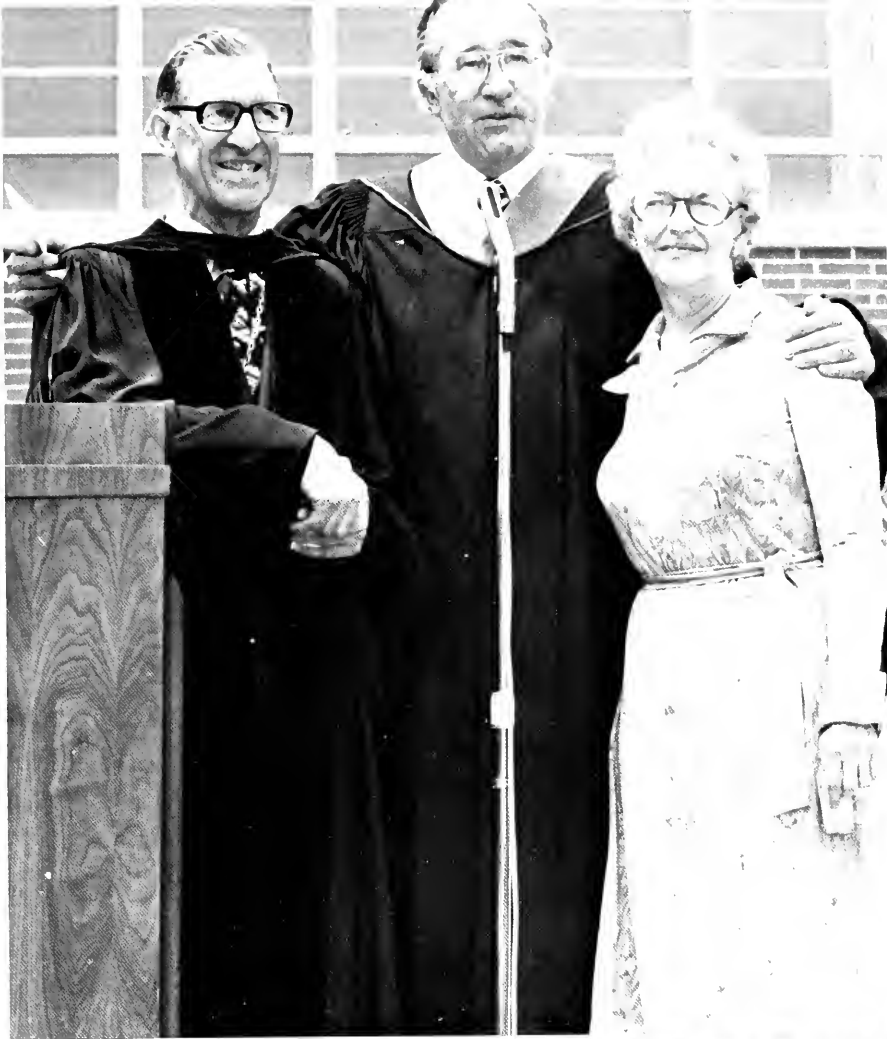

The Bicentennial Class of 1976, congregated for the last time on the York College Mall, on May 15, 1976. Three-hundred and eighty students received the degrees that they had worked so hard to achieve. The Commencement Address was delivered by Ambassador John F. Root and honorary degrees were awarded to Mr. Benjamin M. Root, Dr. Dominick Argento, Aloysius F. Nosal, and the Hon. John F. Root. Towards the end of the ceremony, President Wolf honored the retiring Dr. Ray A. Miller, and his wife Cora.

Senior Index

York Hall was the first permanent structure that was built on the new college campus. This classroom building, which was completed in March of 1961, offered such things as general classrooms, science laboratories and teacher's offices. Also during the first few years, the second floor of York Hall was used as the library for the college. York Hall served as a stepping stone for all of the other buildings that surround that campus of York College of Pennsylvania.

HORIZON 1976

When I was given the position as editor-in-chief of the 1976 HORIZON back in September of 1975, I was slightly skeptical about accepting the responsibility that goes along with this demanding job. As the school year slowly proceeded, the pieces of this giant yearbook puzzle began to fall into place. By the end of October, the HORIZON had six photographers covering the campus and campus activities, looking for prospective pictures to place in the book. Our professional photographer, Brooks Edler, was also working very hard in order to get the senior portraits to the staff by early November. Shortly after, with help from Barbara Cullen, Betsy Brucker, and Kevin O'Brien, the senior section was completed and sent to the publisher in Dallas, Texas.

Soon after the first deadline was met, Dr. Ray A. Miller announced his retirement as president of York College of Pennsylvania, and I was pleased to change the theme of the 1976 HORIZON. (see page = 2) It was a change for the better, as the retirement opened up news ideas for the staff to work on.

After a much needed semester break, work began on the faculty section and Carl Annas started taking pictures for the organization section. By the end of February, our second deadline was met with tremendous help from the staff's managing editor, Steve Furth. Although things seemed to be going well, many photos were needed for our next 70 page deadline, but you must realize that photos alone do not complete the yearbook. The stories for the HORIZON were created by the imaginative minds of Cindy Ravina and Becky Callahan and subsequently typed on to the copy sheets by Sue Sturgeon. Finally the pictures and the stories blended into one and thus our largest deadline of the year was met. Seventy pages, including the Senior Index, The Year, Sports, and the Past and Present section were all sent out and the staff's most difficult task had been completed.

Now only 45 remaining pages were needed to complete the 160 pages and to ensure our mid-August delivery. Many photos were needed for this final deadline, and due to the darkroom help of Thomas LaCorte and Wyatt Morrison the photo quota was met soon after graduation. The last few layout sheets, copy selections and headline styles were completed and the final shipment was sent to Taylor Publishing Co. before the first of June.

The HORIZON staff and myself, would like to thank Dr. Miller, Charlie Wolf, Berni Buckler, and our advisor Heywood Knight, for their support through-out the school year. Due to the help of these individuals, the remaining faculty and administration, and especially the students of YCP, the first HORIZON since 1973 was delivered on time.

The 1976 HORIZON had arrived, the praise belonged to the staff, but the book belonged to the students!
